Columbus-Belmont State Park

The site was considered a critical strategic location for control of the Mississippi River during the Civil War, and the struggle to control the river led to the Battle of Belmont on November 7, 1861. Today, you can still see the massive chain and anchor used by the South to block passage of Union gunboats and the earthen trenches dug to protect over 19,000 Confederate troops. The farmhouse that served as a Civil War hospital is now a museum.
